The Hilltop Inn was built in 1839 and served as a stagecoach stop for weary travelers and business men on the route from Wabash River (New Harmony Area) to the Banks of the Ohio River. The Inn Consisted of a Saloon and a Dining room on one side and a General store/Feed store on the other. Sleeping rooms were located on the second and third floors. The main entrance (now sealed up) was located in the center of the building opening onto a stairwell that allowed people to enter the building without entering the Saloon or the General Store.

The Inn was purchased by the Marx family in 1905 and became known as the Geo.J.Marx Saloon and later the Marx Tavern. In the 1950's George began leasing out the bar and restaurant to other individuals. When Willard and Wanda Robinson leased the business a name change occurred and became "Robby's Hilltop Inn." Don and Lanette Snyder Purchased the Restaurant in 1999. When they retired in 2015 their daughter Marta Hollen took over ownership.
